HEALTH LITERACY: HOW TECHNOLOGY CAN HELP TO EMPOWER PATIENTS

Patients are becoming more independent as they can monitor their own health using mobile applications, not only for monitoring serious cases such as kidney failure, but also to quit smoking, drink more water or exercise more. On 1 July the EP's Science and Technology Options Assessment (STOA) unit organised a workshop with experts to learn how new technologies can empower patients and improve health literacy.

ETS REFORM: EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW IN A NUTSHELL

The EU's emissions trading scheme (ETS) was set up to reduce gas emissions and fight climate change, but it is not working as efficiently as it could be. MEPs discussed on 7 July an informal deal with member states to reform the scheme and will then vote on it the following day. The legislation would tackle the imbalances of supply and demand of emission allowances, which is holding back investment in green technologies. Read on to find out what the reform is all about.

PILLAGE OF CULTURAL SITES – HOW CAN EUROPE HELP TO STOP IT?

Deliberately destroying and pillaging archaeological sites and trafficking art objects in war zones amount to « cultural genocide » and should be classified as war crimes, argued speakers in a public hearing held by the European Parliament's Culture and Education Committee on Monday afternoon. MEPs and experts reiterated the need for harmonised international legislation in this area.

ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT THE END OF ROAMING CHARGES

The end of roaming charges could become a reality in just two years' time. Parliament's industry committee approved on Wednesday a deal to end roaming charged that had been agreed with EU governments and the European Commission. Prices should drop next year, while from 15 June 2017 making a call or watching a football match live on a mobile phone abroad would cost the same as doing so at home. Read on for more details.

Should people have the right to create and share images and photographs of public buildings without having to compensate for the use of copyright? The so-called freedom of panorama already exists in some EU countries, but MEPs are now considering whether it should be extended to all member states. As they will debate it on 9 July, we asked two MEPs on opposing sides of the issue why they think it would be a good or a bad thing. http://www.europarl.europa.eu/news/en/news-room/content/20150701STO72903/html/Debate-should-the-freedom-of-panorama-be-introduced-all-over-the-EU COPYRIGHT 2.0: WHY EXISTING RULES NEED AN UPDATE TO MAKE THEM FIT FOR THE DIGITAL AGE Copyright rules haven't caught up with today's technological world. Leniency, damages, and EU competition policy

EU anti-cartel decisions have imposed billion of euros of fines in recent years, but private actions by cartel victims are also possible. This column discusses a 2014 EU Directive that facilitates private actions by cartel victims while attempting to reduce conflicts between private and public enforcement.
