Pros, advantages and obligations resulting from EU membership

Commission issues country-specific economic recommendations
Commission sets out economic policy guidance and calls on Member States to pursue structural reforms, boost investment and strengthen public finances. The European Commission has set out its economic policy guidance to Member States for the next 12-18 months, in its 2017 country-specific recommendations (CSRs). The economy in the EU and the euro area is proving resilient, but challenges continue. The Commission wants Member States to strengthen the fundamentals of their economies by implementing the common economic and social priorities of boosting investment, pursuing structural reforms and ensuring responsible fiscal policies.

May infringements package

In its monthly package of infringement decisions, the European Commission ('Commission') is pursuing legal action against Member States for failing to comply with their obligations under EU law. These decisions, covering various sectors and EU policy areas, aim to ensure the proper application of EU law for the benefit of citizens and businesses. The key decisions taken by the Commission are presented below and grouped by policy area. The Commission is also closing 65 cases in which the issues with the Member States concerned have been solved without the Commission needing to pursue the procedure further.

Relocation and Resettlement: Commission calls on all Member States to deliver and meet obligations

The Commission adopted its twelfth progress report on the EU's emergency relocation and resettlement schemes, assessing actions taken since 12 April 2017. As a result of the increased efforts of Member States, the number of persons relocated so far in 2017 is almost as many as in the whole of 2016. The total number of relocations now stands at 18,418, proving that relocation works if there is the will to abide by what was agreed together in a spirit of sincere cooperation. However, whilst most Member States are active and relocate regularly, some have still not relocated at all, disregarding their legal obligation. On resettlement, Member States have continued to make significant progress, with safe and legal pathways being provided to 16,163 persons so far, beyond two thirds of the agreed resettlements under the EU scheme. Building on the recommendations from the previous month, today's report is in particular focusing on those Member States that are not delivering on their commitments.

General development of the EU

Digital Single Market: EU negotiators agree on the WiFi4EU initiative

The European Parliament, the Council and the Commission reached a political agreement on the WiFi4EU initiative and its funding which supports installing free public Wi-Fi hotspots in local communities across the EU: in public squares, piazzas, parks, hospitals and other public spaces. As stated by Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker, the WiFi4EU initiative will contribute to the vision of having "every European village and every city with free wireless internet access around the main centres of public life by 2020." Vice-President in charge of the Digital Single Market Andrus Ansip welcomed tonight's agreement and said: "The Digital Single Market strategy aims to build a fully connected Europe where everyone has access to high-quality digital networks. The WiFi4EU initiative will improve connectivity in particular where access to the internet is limited. WiFi4EU is a welcome first step, but much more needs to be done to achieve high-speed connectivity across the whole EU territory – such as improving Europe-wide coordination of spectrum and stimulating investments in the high-capacity networks that Europe needs."

European Semester 2017 Spring Package: Commission issues country-specific recommendations

The European Commission presented its 2017 country-specific recommendations (CSRs), setting out its economic policy guidance for individual Member States for the next 12 to 18 months. The economy in the EU and the euro area is proving resilient, but challenges, such as slow productivity growth, the legacies of the crisis – including persisting

	inequalities – and uncertainty arising mostly from external factors continue. The Commission therefore called on Member States to use this window of opportunity to strengthen the fundamentals of their economies by implementing the economic and social priorities identified in common at European level: boosting investment, pursuing structural reforms and ensuring responsible fiscal policies. Particular attention is paid to the challenges and priorities identified for the euro area. http://europa.eu/rapid/press-release_IP-17-1311_en.htm
Introduction to EU institutions and their functioning	Commission registers European Citizens' Initiative entitled 'Let us reduce the wage and economic differences that tear the EU apart' The Commission has decided on the partial registration of a European Citizens' Initiative on tackling wage and economic inequality, concerning legal acts within its competences. The European Citizens' Initiative invites the Commission to propose "Legal acts that clearly demonstrate the EU's intention to eliminate wage inequalities between Member States and which - to achieve this objective - allow for a more efficient cohesion of these states". The formal registration of this Initiative on 22 May 2017 will start a one-year process of collection of signatures of support by its organisers. The Commission's decision to register the Initiative concerns only the legal admissibility of the proposal. The Commission has not analysed the substance at this stage. The Commission's Decision makes clear for which kind of legal acts signatures may be collected, dependent on the competences set out in the Treaties. http://europa.eu/rapid/press-release_IP-17-1331_en.htm MEPs want to protect citizens from negative effects of globalisation Globalisation puts immense pressure on jobs, wages and standards, while also feeding populism, said many MEPs. They called for better protection for EU industry and workers and urged the EU to take the driving seat in promoting fair global trade. "We must be rule makers, not rule takers", they said. A number of MEPs called for an action plan "to avoid a social race to the bottom" and proposed better redistribution of globalisation's benefits by member states to their citizens. Some MEPs believe that the current form of globalisation is a dead-end street and free trade has seriously undermined democracy, social rights and the environment. "Business as usual" won't help Europeans, they said. Other MEPs called for a fair tax system that would not allow big companies to dodge paying their fair share. http://www.europarl.europa.eu/news/en/press-room/20170509IPR73925/meps-want-to-protect-citizens-from-negative-effects-of-globalisation
Introduction to EU law	European Commission reports on the application of the Charter of fundamental rights in the EU in 2016 The European Commission has published its annual Report on the application of the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights. The report outlines the initiatives taken in 2016 by the EU to strengthen fundamental rights. It also looks at how these rights were applied across a range of EU policies and in the Member States in 2016. First Vice-President

	Frans Timmermans said: "The European Union is not just a market or a currency, it is first and foremost a Union of values. As guardian of the Treaties the European Commission has a special duty to uphold the fundamental rights and the rule of law throughout this Union, a responsibility which we share with all the EU's institutions and Member States." http://europa.eu/rapid/press-release_IP-17-1336_en.htm

	the heart of the Juncker Plan The European Commission welcomes the vote by Members of the European Parliament's Budgets and Economic and Monetary Affairs committees to agree their position on extending, expanding and reinforcing the European Fund for Strategic Investments (EFSI), the so-called "EFSI 2.0". The Commission now calls on the Parliament and Member States to continue working towards the final adoption of the EFSI 2.0 proposal as quickly as possible to the benefit of public and private promoters driving investment projects in Europe. European Commission Vice-President Jyrki Katainen, responsible for Jobs, Growth, Investment and Competitiveness, said: "The European Fund for Strategic Investments has already proven to be an important tool to boost investment, support jobs and spur growth across all 28 Member States. The extension of the EFSI represents an opportunity to build on that success. I look forward to continue working with Members of the European Parliament and Member States in the weeks to come to secure a final agreement." http://europa.eu/rapid/press-release_IP-17-1327_en.htm
Introduction to different negotiation chapters	EU tax rules are not currently prepared for the digital economy EESC debate on taxation of the digital economy and the sharing economy. European tax rules are not currently prepared for the digital economy. They need to be adapted to reality in order to offer the people of Europe a more prosperous future. This was the main message of the European Economic and Social Committee (EESC) debate on Taxation of the Digital Economy held on 5th May. "The digital economy is no longer just a part of the economy, but is becoming the actual economy itself", stated the keynote speaker, Rita de la Feria, professor of Tax Law, University of Leeds, and renowned tax expert - "Global Tax 50" in 2015 and 2016. She outlined that consumption has changed – an increasing part of consumption is done online and a large part of this is on mobile phones. http://www.eesc.europa.eu/?i=portal.en.press-releases.42315

New emerging priorities such as defence, security and border control, and the impact of Brexit on the EU budget risk jeopardising the future of the most powerful investment policy for the 27, worth €454bn until 2020. This is why at the CoR, the idea of a new open alliance was launched. The aim of the Alliance is to cast light on the added value and effectiveness of cohesion policy over the last decade, ensuring that decisions on the next EU budget take into account the voice of hundreds of thousands of beneficiaries from regional and local authorities, SMEs, NGOs, schools, universities, cultural organisations. http://cor.europa.eu/en/news/Pages/EU-Regions-and-cities-start-building-an-Alliance-for-the-Future-of-Cohesion-Policy.aspx
